

Spelling List 31

electricity	compact disk	monitor circuit	digital camera	network calculator	cellular telephone	Internet automation	computer	electric mail (e-mail) microphone	software	1 and 2 Timothy (1 and 2 Tim.) television	hardware	Titus antenna	byte	Philemon (Philem.)
space shuttle	megabyte
video	modern

audio: relating to the production of sound laser: a device that produces intense beams of light facsimile (fax): an exact copy hologram: a special type of image produced by laser light telecommunication: communication over long distances database: a huge collection of information stored by a computer fiber optics: the technique of transmitting light through glasslike wires microfilm: a film on which printed materials are photographed much smaller than normal to save space natural: made by God

synthetic: man-made